INTER-PARTY TILTS SHARE SPOTLIGHT WITH REPEAL VOTE

Indications of Drift in Political Sentiment Is Sought in Results of Scattered State-Wide and Mayoral Elections.

PARTY LINES SPLIT IN SEVERAL AREAS

Major Interest To Center on Contests in New York, Cleveland and Boston.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Balloting of national prohibition repeal in six states tops the off-year elections Tuesday, but the outcome of scattered state-wide and mayoral elections is awaited with almost equal interest by party chieftains who seek to know the drift, if any, of political sentiment.

While the results of these widely separated elections may not have any great effect on the present political picture, democratic and republican leaders concede that overtures in various contests may have a direct bearing on the 1934 congressional elections.

Next fall 435 house members, 314 of whom are democrats and 32 senators, 17 of whom are republicans, come up for election. Any shifts that might occur in political control of city and state offices Tuesday, political observers say, may affect candidacies of incumbent house and senate members from those sections.

The states voting on repeal are Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Kentucky, North and South Carolina. Only three of them need favor repeal to wipe out the eighteenth amendment. Thirty-three states already have balotted in unbroken succession against the prohibition law.

Ratification of repeal, in the event it is voted, would not come before December 5, since conventions must do the ratifying.

Some republicans, stimulated by their national committee's pamphlet outlining a plan of campaign against President Roosevelt and the NRA—are emphasizing the value of victories Tuesday as a wedge for possibly wider gains in 1934.

Democrats are equally as anxious to hold all ground gained in the 1932 landslide. In several cities, however, local party lines are split, particularly in New York, Cleveland and Boston.

Despite President Roosevelt's reiterated assertion that he is not interested in any mayoral contest, endorsement of Mayor McKee, "recovery" candidate for mayor of New York city, by James A. Farley, has been interpreted as throwing the full force of the administration's followers behind this candidate.

Postmaster-General Farley is national and state democratic chairman. The other candidates in the New York contest are Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany Hall's candidate, and Fiorello H. La Guardia, of the fusion party.

Wed or Quit Party Posts, Il Duce Tells Bachelors

ROME, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini today ordered all bachelors holding executive positions in the fascist party or candidates for the next Italian legislative election to marry or resign.

The Italian ambassador to the United States, Augusto Rosso, is a bachelor and will be affected by the decree.

The marriage order was motivated by the fact that Il Duce insisted all fascist chiefs show the example, he, Mussolini, personally has shown, by raising a large family.

He persistently has attacked bachelors for failing to fulfill their duty to the state. Through Mussolini's insistence, many fascist chiefs, including Air Marshal Italo Balbo, who led the Italian mass flight to Chicago last year, married soon after fascism came into power.

Two persons were shot, one fatally, and a third was being held on "suspicion" Sunday as police waged a war against a continued crime wave in Atlanta.

Nazarene Shepard, negro, of 512 Edith street, was killed by a policeman's bullet Sunday afternoon when he was shot at four times at close range, one bullet taking effect in the thigh. He was taken to Grady hospital for treatment. The bandits fled after the shooting without getting any money.

M. Zipper, manager of the store, and Clifford Benton, negro, who is employed by Sabeisen, were held by the second robber's gun when Sabeisen resisted the holdup attempt.

Bandit Shot Dead. Patrolmen C. McNeil and R. G. Pollard, answering a call to 508 Edith street, N. E., appeared on the scene as the negro, Shepard, was holding a pistol and firing at the police.

Shepard snapped the gun once at the other negro and attempted to fire it several times at McNeil, who drew his own pistol. Clifford Benton, who was with one shot. The negro died at Grady hospital shortly after being admitted.

Caught with loot from the Biltmore Pharmacy, at West Peachtree and Sixth street, a few seconds after the place had been burglarized, Robert A. Spradlin, 24-year-old white man, who gave his address as 515 Griffin street, was being held on "suspicion" Sunday night.

Radio Patrolmen S. W. Roper and R. C. Tuglie said the plate-glass front window of the drugstore had been smashed, but that the burglar had not been seen. The two officers went through the opening. The robber got a number of articles from the window display. The officers arrested Spradlin at a short distance from the scene and they said he had the loot in his hands.

Lunchroom Robbed Again. For the second time in the last few weeks, the Teeny Weeny Lunchroom at 1003 Piedmont avenue, was robbed by three negroes Sunday morning.

The manager, D. H. Wilkins, said two of the bandits came to the counter, while the third sat at the wheel of their car. As he prepared some sandwiches for them, the two officers placed a gun at his back and ransacked the cash register. They got $12, Wilkins said. On the previous occasion the manager frightened the robbers away before they got any money.

W. C. Stanfield, of Carrollton, told police his bedmate stole his clothes before he got up Sunday morning. Stanfield said he rented a room at 233 South Pryor street and shared it with a man named Haines. Before Stanfield awoke, the roommate departed with the Carrollton man's clothing, leaving his own in exchange. Stanfield told police the swap was not a fair one.

R. W. Benninette, of 533 Pryor street, reported that a burglar entered his home sometime during the night and stole $1.75 from a pair of trousers.

CHEST TO LAUNCH 'ADVANCE GIFTS' CAMPAIGN TODAY

70,000 Employees of Large Businesses Also Will Be Visited This Week by 500 Volunteer Workers.

The first phase of the most important campaign the Atlanta Community Chest has ever undertaken will be launched this morning, to be continued until next Saturday, November 11. Approximately 500 men and women will sidetrack their own affairs of home and office and for six days center their efforts on the task of reaching 70,000 employees of large businesses. They also will canvass the "advance gifts," who are those whose contributions amount to as much as $200 or more.

The annual general drive will open Tuesday, November 14. The goal of this will be a contribution from every resident of Atlanta who has an income of $100 a year or more. The red feather, the symbol of humanity, signifying that a gift already has been made.

The canvass will be conducted by 2,000 volunteer workers, by far the largest number that has ever participated in a Community Chest drive here, because this year the need is greater. The army of help for whom the campaign will be conducted totals 60,000. These depend entirely on the success of the campaign, for their daily bread.

"Right-of-Way" Asked. The plea that workers seeking "advance gifts" be given the right-of-way over other callers was renewed Sunday. These volunteers, each of whom is contributing both time and money, will find it difficult at best to make all the calls assigned to them, it was pointed out. Confidence was expressed that any who are on the waiting list in any reception room will gladly give way to a Chest worker, and business and professional men were urged not to delay them unnecessarily.

At the same time it was declared imperative that every "advance gift" be made as large as possible, as the donors can possibly contribute. "Every cent counts," said a campaign leader. "It is a literal, terrible truth that the children of Georgia are starving this winter unless there is sufficient money raised in this campaign to provide for them."

Identifying "advance gifts" in addition to the brilliant red feather to be worn in the hat band, will be a stickpin emblem, which is the companion in size to the Blue Eagle sticker. The sticker portrays a hand holding aloft a man's hat to which is pinned a red feather.

DOLLFUSS ORDERS 'AUSTRIA CLEAN-UP'

Drastic Shakeup Planned To Oust Nazi Sympathizers From State Posts

VIENNA, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A sweeping shakeup of Austria's governmental machinery under the supervision of federal commissars, authorized to ferret out and eliminate officials and government employees of Nazi sympathies, was announced by Chancellor Dollfuss in a speech.

The chancellor said the new commissar will be appointed within the week, will be called "the federal commissar for personnel reform," and will be the government's first move in a new "hard-boiled" campaign against undercover opposition.

"I am astounded," exclaimed Dollfuss, "that in these very circles, which always laid such stress on personal honor and moral responsibility such things as a sworn oath today are taken lightly."

Later, during the summer, sweeping disciplinary measures were taken to eliminate Nazis from public life. Many burgomasters were deposed and many Nazis were thrown out of the army.

Texas Guinan Is Dead After Illness of Week

Queen of Night Life in Hot Spots From New York to Coast Succumbs Following Operation.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Texas Guinan, the night club queen, who was known best for her unique contributions to Broadway's vocabulary, died in a hospital here today of an intestinal illness.

The robust entertainer sent the phrases, "Hello, sucker," and "Give me a little girl a great big hand," virtually around the world.

Born Mary Louise Cecelia Guinan in Waco, Texas, about 48 years ago, she experienced a kaleidoscopic career that ran from the plains to the picture making of early Hollywood and then to a noisy New York climax that was studied with courtroom battles with the prohibition law.

She had been absent from Broadway much in the last three years and just had completed a Pacific coast theatrical tour with her troupe of girls. She opened here on October 28 and had another engagement scheduled at Victoria, B. C., this week.

In Hospital Six Days. She entered the hospital here last Monday night suffering from ulcerated colitis. A physician said her condition seemed satisfactory until yesterday morning, when a perforation of the bowel developed and an operation was performed.

Steadily she became worse and died at 8:30 o'clock this morning—across the continent from the city which she knew so well.

Miss Guinan for a time wrangled cattle on her father's ranch when she was 14 and was educated in a convent.

After her father moved to Denver, she won a scholarship at the Chicago Conservatory of Music. From there she started Hollywood cast her in more than a hundred motion pictures in the early days of the screen, and there she earned the sobriquet of the "female William S. Hart."

Soon after 1920 her name began to appear in the early days of the screen, and there she earned the sobriquet of the "female William S. Hart."

By 1925 her "Three Hundred Club" in West Forty-eighth street, New York, was in its heyday. Round vices.

BURGIN ASSIGNED SIX DIE AS PLANE CRASHES ON HOUSE

Pilot, Explorer and Four Negro Occupants of Dwelling Lose Lives.

SHREWSBURY, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A New Jersey national guard airplane, piloted by Lieutenant George R. Burgin, South American explorer, crashed today and exploded, trapping in the flames Johnson, his passenger and the other four occupants.

Both pilots were killed, and the others, either four or five in number, perished in the flames that razed the structure.

Police listed the following as dead: George R. (Tuck) Johnson, 32, of Monmouth Beach.

Sergeant Alfred Poole, Hillside. June King, 5, negro. Patricia King, 2, negro. Edward Wilson, 38, of Little Silver, negro.

The children's mother, Margaret King, 28, could not be found after the crash. Police at first said she was lost in the flames. Later they started investigating a report that she was out of town at the time the crash occurred. Wilson was a visitor at the house.

Otis King, father of the children, had left the place, police said, a few minutes before the plane's plunge, and was in England.

JOHNSON HEADING FOR MIDDLE WEST TO FIGHT FOR NRA

General Starts Tour Calculated To Clear Up Dissatisfaction in Areas of Mississippi.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson set out for the west tonight in an endeavor to clear away opposition and discontent that have massed in the farm belt against the NRA and the rest of the recovery program.

It was an "air tour" that started on the ground, for weather prevented Johnson from leaving his plane, and he went to Chicago on the Liberty Limited. Johnson hoped the army transport could pick him up there tomorrow for the rest of the week's swing that will include Minneapolis, Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas City, Tulsa, Fort Worth, and Louisville.

The NRA administrator left behind him many difficult problems for his aide to handle, a batch of codes for President Roosevelt to approve, and a statement informing trade associations that code authorities and other industrial agencies will be given self-government only as they are organized to administer it, and that they will not be given charge of labor disputes until worker representation is provided for on all agencies handling employee complaints.

Coming on top of the week's agitation over the Swope plan for business to take over the code administration, lock stock and barrel, the statement was regarded as an assurance to labor that it had nothing to fear, and a serious urging to industries to create the machinery for desired self-government.

No further word on the Ford-NRA friction was spoken before Johnson's departure. A petition from Ford workers at Edgewater, N. J., complaining that the company's negotiations with the men were unsatisfactory, and asking the labor board to take charge, had not been received until the petition arrived.

Emissaries Named. He completed selection, however, of bondsmen who will go immediately into the Pennsylvania coal mine fields to prepare for the local representative elections at the steel company's "Carnegie" mines.

NRA deputies were charged by Johnson before his departure with the job of speeding action on codes. He approved 28, but sent back 12 to the White House, and returned the others for minor changes. Those in

ELECTION REFORM BEFORE COUNCIL

Body To Consider White's Ordinance Calling for City Supervisor.

An ordinance designed to insure honesty and fairness in city primaries and elections by creating a supervisor of registrations will be offered by Councilman John A. White for consideration by city council this afternoon.

Action on the matter was brought about by the presentations of the Fulton county grand jury, which Friday afternoon city primary was "tainted with fraudulent registration and voting."

White's proposal would create a supervisor to work only on registering voters, checking registration lists, and administering oaths. The office would be under the direction of City Clerk J. Henson Tatum, registrar, and the supervisor would be named by Tatum.

Present Winburn, secretary of the old democratic committee and a member of the new body, will attempt this week to get the council to consider the grand jury findings in relation to the second ward race. His consideration will be provisional, he said, the project to be carried out only if the other members are in favor of it.

Many less important matters will be discussed by council, including the suggestion of Mayor Key that the mayor and council attend a municipal affairs conference in Atlantic City on November 9-11; that the city represented in the public service commission's probe of electrical power, and that an ordinance be passed prohibiting a charge for admission for motion picture shows in school buildings.

Chicago Judge Urges Legal, Licensed Gambling

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Gambling, where it exists, should be operated for the benefit of the public rather than enemies of the public. Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green declared today.

Elaborating on a suggestion made from the bench to license the flourishing gambling industry in Chicago, the jurist said:

"I am against gambling. It has always bred evil and always will. But the fact remains that it exists. It is an important underworld business. We can't wink at that fact and in view of that fact I believe gambling should be licensed. It could then be operated honestly for the benefit of the public rather than for the benefit of public enemies."

"Another thing. Prohibition is about to be repealed. This will deprive organized crime of the greatest source of income it has ever enjoyed. If we can take gambling away from it also, we can break the power of the underworld."

Many Problems. The NRA administrator left behind him many difficult problems for his aide to handle, a batch of codes for President Roosevelt to approve, and a statement informing trade associations that code authorities and other industrial agencies will be given self-government only as they are organized to administer it, and that they will not be given charge of labor disputes until worker representation is provided for on all agencies handling employee complaints.

Hamm Case Suspects Face Court Wednesday

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Gandom and the law will come to grips again this week in the federal government's second big legal battle involving the kidnapping of a millionaire.

On one side will be Joseph B. Keenan, ace of the nation's criminal divi, who played a big part in convicting George "Machine Gun" Kelly and Harvey Bailey of the Urschel abduction in Oklahoma, and George F. Sullivan, United States district attorney here.

On the other will be four men, suspects in the $100,000 kidnapping of the Theodore Hamm Brewing Company here. Their trial in federal court under the Lindbergh law will probably start Wednesday.

Weather May Prevent Lindy's Swiss Flight. THE HAGUE, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Owing to unfavorable weather conditions it appeared probable tonight that Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will postpone their flight to Switzerland, which they had planned for tomorrow morning.

The couple toured Holland by automobile today. Their Swissland flight will be routed by way of Paris.

BLOCKADED TRUCK CRASHED BY AUTO; 2 ARE ARRESTED

Governor Herring Threatens To Call Out Guards After Pickets Halt Train and Release 8 Carloads of Live Stock.

RAIL TIES PLACED IN PATH OF TRAIN

Detectives Helpless To Protect Shipment; Action Against Group by U. S. Authorities Seen.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—(AP)—One man was killed, three were injured and thousands of dollars worth of produce was destroyed, as embattled farmers tonight attempted to stem the flow of foodstuffs into marketing centers of the farm strike area.

A speeding automobile crashed into a blockaded farm truck near Dakota City, Neb., catapulted the machine into a group of picketers who were clamping their hands on the truck. William Winget and Jerry Philip were seriously injured.

Harry Jackson, driver of the car, and a companion were held, pending investigation. Violence was reported from a half-dozen other fronts as the hour for starting marketing caravans arrived. Officials believed it would be necessary to call out troops in some sections.

Pickers barricaded the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks at Lawton, Ia., and turned loose eight carloads of cattle after the train was forced to a halt.

Governor Clyde Herring, who earlier had refused request of the sheriff at Glenwood to send troops from Sioux City, Neb., to help break up the strike, would order out guardsmen if it seems local officials could not maintain order.

In Wisconsin, where "one death already has occurred as a result of the strike, fresh violence was reported. A truck carrying 40,000 pounds of milk was derailed by a mob of strikers. Telephone connections were cut, apparently for the purpose of harassing officials and numerous similar acts of violence were reported.

A crowd of pickets piled railroad ties across the Chicago & Northwestern tracks at Lawton and forced the train to halt. Then the men broke seals of the cars and released the livestock bound for Sioux City.

Herring said he received a report of the affair from the sheriff of Woodbury county and the sheriff asserted there were but few farmers in the mob. The crowd was described by the sheriff as "a mob of men, some of whom were armed with shotguns and rifles." Railroad detectives on the train were helpless to protect the shipment.

Both the sheriff and the mayor of Lawton, Herring said, "have promised to call me again in the morning. I told them that the stopping of the train was a federal proposition as it involved the kidnapping of a millionaire."

Interfering with interstate shipments. Federal authorities could not be reached for comment, but local officers asserted they undoubtedly they would take action.

The governor's statement came shortly after Sheriff W. A. DeMoss of Lawrence, Kan., appealed to the governor to send troops there to guard the Plattsmouth bridge over the Missouri river—local point for traffic bound to the Omaha market.

Farmers there, De Moss said, were "90 per cent opposed to the strike" and already were organizing to convey their trucks over the strike-flank bridge to markets.

"A lot of farmers are going down to that bridge who won't come back," he said. "The governor has failed us. We asked for help but he won't give it to us."

Sheriff's deputies patrolling highways were taunted by roving strike picketers, who cut telephone lines, dumped truckloads of milk and scattered nails and tacks in farm driveways.

Petty violence, in contrast to six bombings which thus far have marked Wisconsin's participation in the strike, was reported from several counties.

133 National Banks Freed of Restrictions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—J. F. T. O'Connor, the comptroller of the currency, Saturday night issued a statement saying 133 national banks with aggregate frozen deposits of $124,849,000 were licensed, chartered or liquidated during October.

This compared with 95 having $82,347,000 frozen deposits which the statement said, were licensed, chartered or liquidated in September.

The statement said that while on the banking holiday, there were 1,446 unlicensed national banks, that number had been reduced to 805 by November 1.

'Seafood Week' Will Honor Georgia's Coastal Products

Indorsed by Governor Eugene Talmadge and praised by the state game and fish commissioner, oysters native to Georgia's waters are about to be celebrated in a state-wide observance of Georgia Seafood Week.

The Georgia oyster, said Governor Talmadge in a statement to all Georgians, is known for its exceptional purity and superb flavor. Furthermore, said Peter S. Twitty, commissioner of the department of game and fish, "the Georgia oyster is grown and produced in clean brackish waters where our salt waters and fresh waters converge, and prepared for shipment without being treated by any chemical or artificial processes, their pure, natural, wholesome flavor is preserved."

Supplementing these statements commending Georgia oysters to Georgians, in what is designed to be a sort of oyster appreciation week from November 12 to November 19, C. Reynolds Clark, Georgia state chemist, added an official declaration that the pure food division of the state department of health co-operates with the federal government in assuring that clean and safe oysters reach the consuming public.

Oysters Held Spotlight. Other seafoods native to Georgia waters—shrimp, crabs, clams, turkeys, sea bass, sea trout, whiting and croakers—share with the oyster the recognition which consumers are asked to acknowledge during Georgia Seafood Week. The oyster holds the spotlight, chiefly for the reason that

Hunt for Floyd Still Is Pushed by Police

Intensive search for Floyd Still, white-slave hunter, continued Sunday as Atlanta and county officers expressed the opinion that the former school teacher would be captured within a short time.

Acting on several tips and clues, Chief T. O. Sturdivant and his men are keeping a close watch of the section of Gwinnett county near the scene where Still murdered his 19-year-old wife one week ago Sunday. Reports were that important information as to the whereabouts of Still had been turned over to police, but no official confirmation could be obtained.

R. F. C. FARM AID SHOWN IN REPORT

Shift From Help to Banks and Industrial Corporations Noted.

By C. C. NICOLET.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(UP)—A pronounced shift from aid to banks and industrial corporations to assistance to farmers and the unemployed is shown in a report on activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, made public tonight.

Child of Herbert Hoover, the RFC has become the general handy man of the new deal, used for everything from indirect pegging of the price of farm commodities to providing the means for gold purchase at home and abroad with the intent of depreciating the dollar. Its original sponsors had no notion that they were creating a machine for such operations, but so wide did they make its powers that President Roosevelt has found it easy to use it for his own program with only minor changes in the act authorizing it.

From that start of its operations on February 2, 1932, until the close of business October 31, 1933, the RFC made cash advances of $2,947,182.173.34 and received repayments of $835,481,296.38, the report showed.

In the first 11 months of operation, from February 2 to December 31, 1932, the RFC under the Hoover administration advanced $1,502,168,401.99, of which about $1,340,000,000 went to banks, railroads, mortgage loan companies, insurance companies and other big business enterprises.

From January 1 to October 31, 1933, out of about $1,700,000,000 additional funds advanced, less than a billion went to such companies. A total of about $88,000,000 went more or less directly for agricultural aid in the first 11 months of operation. More than $400,000,000 of the total up to October 31 went for such purposes. In the first 11 months $76,000,000 went to states, territories and federal subdivisions for relief work.

The figures up to October 31 do not cover any aspect of the gold acquisition policy, since so far no cash has been advanced for this purpose. All gold deals are being financed by debentures.

Individual Aid Emphasized.

The statistics cited show how substantial has been the shift in emphasis of RFC activities from corporate aid to individual aid. It is still functioning as one of the key agencies of the government in rehabilitating banks and industry, but the proportion of its funds used for this purpose has been reduced markedly, while the proportion used for agriculture and relief has increased correspondingly.

The largest single division of RFC aid remains the banks. A total of $1,308,128,879.70 has been advanced to them directly. In addition, $51,868,000 has been used to buy preferred stock in banks as an aid to organization or reorganization and another $13,528,500 for loans secured by preferred stock for the same purposes.

Next in volume came the railroads, to which $386,955,201 has been advanced. A total of $135,000,000 has been given to the secretary of agriculture for direct crop loans to farmers—a relief move which in effect pegs prices. This will be increased rapidly as the corn loan program goes into effect after January 1. Most of the funds advanced so far have gone to cotton farmers.

Activities of the RFC now range over the entire field of recovery and the limit of expansion under the all-embracing act which created it has not yet been reached.

It is authorized to indulge in almost any kind of financial operation as long as the object is "to aid in financing agriculture, commerce and industry."

Its latest function, financing the purchase of gold abroad by the federal reserve bank for the RFC account is made possible under a section of the original act providing that "the federal reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositories, custodians and fiscal agents of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the general performance of its powers."

Garage and automobile of J. L. Roberson, of 722 Grant street, were destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, according to police and fire department reports. Origin of the blaze not determined.

Edwin Cosby, 14, of 480 Payne avenue, who fractured his skull Saturday in a fall into an empty swimming pool in Maddox park, was reported "resting well" Sunday at Grady hospital. His condition was thought to be not serious.

Health centers for babies under four will be held at the following places this week, according to Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer: Tuesday, Adair school; Wednesday, Fair Street school; Thursday, Capitol View school; and Friday, the James L. Key school. The centers begin at 1:30 o'clock each afternoon.

William E. Brown, C. S. B., of Los Angeles, will deliver an address on "Christian Science, the Religion of Spiritual Vision" at 8 o'clock Sunday night at the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The long school day will be discussed at a meeting of the rules committee of the board of education at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The public is invited and its views on the matter will be heard.

Brisk Stimulation in Trade.
Forecast by Labor's Survey

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(UP)—The American Federation of Labor's October survey of the nation's economy today reported a "real income" ahead of March and then by 2 per cent. The loss was greatest in September, the federation said, because hourly wages did not rise enough to maintain weekly and monthly income when hours were shortened.

The federation forecast that the heavy industry sector will be greatly stimulated by contract letting under public works, and for new railroad equipment.

Greater buying was predicted "when workers are sure of their jobs and when their debts are cleared."

"These developments," said the federation, "mean far more for sound business progress than the spectacular rise we had last spring, but do not make nearly such good publicity. For these fundamentals will not appear in our business indicators until they have actually caused greater business activity."

"Expansion will come when large numbers of businessmen see results in increased orders and have confidence to go ahead."

"NRA wages have not brought the living standard to the average worker. A 6 per cent increase in wages has been eaten up in an 8.5 per cent increase in living costs and he needs his real money income in September actually below March by 2.3 per cent. Some codes have reduced minimum wage rates below those actually in force in the industry, as in silk; in other cases employers have reduced their higher paid workers to raise the low-paid group."

"Thus better pay for workers where there were no unions have lost under codes, while the minimum group have made progress."

"Other benefits are more general. Hours are shorter, men are going back to work. The worker knows that wage and hour scales are not permanent; for wages must be adjusted upward as prices rise, hours downward as machinery shortens working time."

SOUTH AMERICAN TRIP IS SEEN FOR LITVINOFF

MOSCOW, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Foreign Commissioner Maxim Litvinoff may proceed to South America after his recognition negotiations at Washington this week, it was indicated in semi-official quarters today.

The Soviet government is anxious to make expected recognition by the United States and entering wedge for recognition generally among all American nations. It was felt that the chief reason for failure of Latin American governments to recognize the Soviet union had been Washington's refusal until now to do so.

The Soviet leaders desire to open trade relations with South and Central American nations, as well as the United States, it was indicated, offering a rich market for products from both continents.

At present Uruguay is the only Latin American nation which maintains diplomatic contacts with Moscow.

Political circles have long been convinced that the United States of Mexico in her breach of diplomatic relations with Bolivia and hope that President Roosevelt's recognition move will result in a return of normal relations with Mexico, as well as her sister republics below the Rio Grande.

IS LAID TO GREECE

Curt Note From Washington Scores Athens on Insult Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(UP)—A curt note to Athens today termed Greece's denial of Samuel Insull's extradition "a clear violation of the American-Hellenic treaty of extradition" and sought the earliest possible termination of the covenant.

The diplomatic message cabled to Lincoln MacVeagh, minister at Athens, by the state department for delivery to the foreign affairs minister of Greece, said the United States "learned with astonishment" of the second refusal of Greek authorities to order the return of Insull, "a fugitive from American justice."

The note said the Greek authorities "attempted actually to try the case instead of confining themselves to the question of competence to submit the case to the United States government was sufficient to justify the fugitive's apprehension and commitment for trial."

Denunciation of the treaty to the Greek government was said by state department officials to constitute the formal year's notice provided in the pact for its termination by either party.

From Cook County.

The first extradition application for Insull, former utilities magnate, was founded on a Cook county, Illinois, indictment. When this was refused, the government requested his return on a federal bankruptcy charge.

The note cabled MacVeagh for delivery to the Greek foreign minister said: "I am instructed to inform your excellency that the United States government has learned with astonishment that the Greek authorities have again declined to honor the request of the United States for the extradition of Samuel Insull, a fugitive from American justice."

"My government finds it difficult to reconcile this unusual decision with the admission of competent authorities that the fugitive committed the acts with which he was charged and that these acts are illegal and fraudulent both in the United States and Greece."

Without going into the details of the decision, it is evident that the authorities attempted actually to try the case instead of confining themselves to ascertaining whether the indictment submitted by the United States government was sufficient to justify the fugitive's apprehension and commitment for trial. There can be no doubt that the question of criminal intent referred by the Hellenic government would be fairly and judiciously passed upon by the courts in the United States. I am to add that my government considers that the utterly untenable and a clear violation of the American-Hellenic treaty of extradition signed at Athens on March 6, 1912.

"Inasmuch as the Greek authorities have now seen fit on two occasions to deny the just requests of the United States made under the provisions of the above-mentioned treaty, it is apparent that this treaty, although similar in terms to treaties which the United States has found effective in extraditing fugitives from other countries, cannot be relied upon to effect the extradition of fugitives who have fled to Greece. My government therefore considers that the American point of view of the treaty is entirely useless. Accordingly I am instructed to give formal notice herewith of my government's denunciation of the treaty with a view to its termination at the earliest date possible under its pertinent provisions."

U. S. WORK CONTRACTS AWARDED IN GEORGIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, announced Sunday that contracts between several Georgia cities and the public works administration had been closed.

Alma will receive $27,000 for a new high school, Macon $26,000 for waterworks, and Warrenton $8,100 for a deep well for the water system.

Ickes, in his report also announced that almost 200 other contracts between local government agencies and the public works administration were closed prior to November 1.

The completion of the bond purchase contracts and grant agreements opens the way for immediate expenditure of funds and award of local construction contracts. The right-of-way was given, Ickes said, to those contracts where work can be begun immediately.

Many allotments have been made, he added, subject to the outcome of local elections on the issuance of bonds.

Agreements closed for work in southern states included:

North Carolina: Wake county, for high school building, $14,000; Brunswick county, rural school building, $3,500; Wilson, addition to city hall, $3,000; Durham, $710,000 for sewer outfall and sewer treatment plant.

Alabama: Arab, complete new water system, $23,000; Sylacauga, new source of water supply, filtration plant, $100,000; Montgomery, three wells and pumping machinery for waterworks, $70,000; Uniontown, construction of reservoir and new pump, $6,000.

Arkansas: Texarkana, strengthening bridges, $20,000.

Florida: Pahokee, waterworks, $100,000.

Without reaching a verdict and again retired to a hotel here tonight, more than a week after taking the case. No indication was given as to when a decision might be reached. The jury began its deliberations at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The slaying took place at Dexter, Ga., on October 7. Attorneys for the defendant based their case on the contention that Mrs. Burns also was armed and that Mrs. Wynn shot her in self-defense.

Increased Domestic Demand Seen for Farm Goods in 1934

Higher Prices Also Forecast in Report on Comprehensive Study in 40 States.

By ARTHUR F. DEGREVE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Increased domestic demand for farm products in 1934, with the level of prices to farmers dependent upon the progress of the industrial recovery program, was forecast tonight by the department of agriculture as the farm strike in the midwest was ordered into "high gear" by its leaders.

A day after President Roosevelt rejected an impracticable price-fixing program submitted by governors of five farm states, a comprehensive study of the agricultural situation in 40 states was made public.

Foreign Consumption Drop Seen.

The report noted that while the domestic demand for farm commodities seemed likely to improve, the prospects for increased foreign consumption of American agricultural products was less favorable.

Crop production for 1934, it was estimated, will be kept at 1933 levels through the acreage-reduction program of the agricultural adjustment administration.

Despite a reduction of 25,000,000 acres in land used for cotton, the total supply still will be large in 1934, it was pointed out.

The world wheat market continues to be depressed, the report noted, adding that improved business conditions abroad and relaxation of import restrictions as a result of the London wheat conference might stimulate exports of this grain.

Supplies of most types of tobacco still are excessive and before next planting time, the economists said, it is probable that action will be taken to control the 1934 production of all United States types of tobacco.

Higher Prices Forecast.

In commenting on the prospects of generally higher prices for farm commodities, the report said: "It appears that farmers in 1934 may anticipate a somewhat higher level of prices for their marketable commodities, as well as improvement in the exchange value of their output. It should be borne in mind that the extent of the price rise will be affected by future monetary and credit policies which may alter substantially the conclusion drawn from any analysis of present conditions."

A summary of the report, however, stated: "It seems probable that further advances in prices of farm products will be dependent primarily upon a more pronounced recovery in the output of industries using non-agricultural products."

No increase in credit "from merchants and dealers in 1934 is anticipated, but more money will be placed in the hands of the farmers through government checks in payment for reduced crop and acreage pledges, the report said.

Legion Executive Committee Maps Program for Next Year

Membership for 1934 Reaches 1,757, Commander Reports; Organization's Greatest Year Is Predicted.

The executive committee of the American Legion, department of Georgia, met Sunday at the Ansley hotel and mapped plans for the coming year. State Commander Sidney Camp, of Newnan, presided.

Predicting the greatest year in Georgia for the Legion, Commander Camp reported 1,757 members already paid up for 1934, as against 976 at the same time two years ago. He reported on a recent trip to several posts and told of three new posts already established, bringing the total in the state to 137.

Commander Camp asked the wholehearted support of every member of the Legion executive committee in making the Legion "awake, alive and alert" in Georgia.

Appointment of Mark Stevenson, of Decatur, as chairman of the rehabilitation committee; of Usher Winslett, of Macon, as national member of child welfare committee; of Harvey Kennedy, of Barnesville, as department judge advocate; of Earl Stockbridge, of Atlanta, as a member of the finance committee; and of Delacy Allen, Scott Candler and Quimby Melton as members of the publication committee, were approved by the executive committee.

State Adjutant Bill Simon, in his report to the committee, told of visits to 30 posts in south Georgia. He outlined plans for a special Armistice Day radio broadcast Friday night, at which time every new member of the Legion in the state will be initiated over radio into the organization. Commander Camp, Past Commander Scott Candler, National Executive Committee member Melton; Adjutant Simon, and others will take part in the radio program.

Resolutions were passed by the board commending the department commander, adjutant and state service officer for their services.

Another resolution asked the amendment of civil service law to include disabled veterans from being declared surplus employees as long as there are non-veteran employees still on the active list. This resolution would give veterans, widows or wives of injured veterans, who are in civil service, an opportunity to qualify within 90 days for any vacancy in any other grade or class of employment before being declared surplus employees.

Bob Kelsey, editor of the Georgia Legionnaire, who was present, was commended in a resolution adopted by the executive committee.

FAIRLEY INDORSES MCKEE TICKET

Postmaster-General To Vote for All "Recovery Party" Candidates.

BY FRANCIS A. JAMIESON. NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(P)—Postmaster-General James A. Farley, leader of the forces that nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for president, tonight flatly endorsed the entire ticket headed by Joseph V. McKee, independent democratic mayor of New York.

Amplifying his statement that he would vote for McKee—who has repeatedly asserted that a vote for McKee is a vote for Roosevelt—Farley, democratic state and national chairman, said he would vote also for Ferdinand Pecora, James J. Hoey and other "recovery party" candidates.

Farley's statement came as the three major candidates, McKee, Fiorello H. La Guardia, fusion, and John P. O'Brien, Tammany Hall, apparently tireless, plunged into a climactic windup of the bitterest city election since Tammany was overthrown in 1914.

Asserting that he felt "a vote for O'Brien would be half a vote for La Guardia," for it is very evident that O'Brien cannot win, Farley said he would vote for McKee because "he will give to the city of New York a government of efficiency, of honesty and of real service."

Praising the public record of Pecora, counsel for the subcommittee of the senate committee on banking and currency, Farley said his election as district attorney of New York county "would sound the death note of racketeering here."

He joined former Governor Alfred E. Smith in endorsing Hoey, who as president of the borough of Manhattan, Smith, silent, said, "is a native of Missouri."

The First Methodist church of Port Worth is a recently completed million-dollar building and the congregation numbers 3,200. It is located in the downtown section and is said to be one of the most beautiful church plants in the south.

The Atlanta minister expressed regret at leaving his many friends here and praised the members of St. Mark for their loyal support and aid to him during his pastorate here.

Dr. Johnson is a native of Alabama and has been located in Port Worth for the last two years. He was pastor of a church in Texas. He and his wife and family will move to Atlanta after the conference, it was said.

ADMINISTRATION SILENT ON FARM STRIKE PLANS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(P)—The Roosevelt administration today concentrated its farm program on the corn belt, fear of farm unrest and a holiday-strife movement.

Secretary Wallace and Farm Administrator George N. Peek said that during the next two months they would master what would revolve about the government's $500,000,000 corn-hog program, corn loans, and the development of a plan for improving beef cattle prices.

Neither had comment on the National Farm Holiday Association's announced intention of throwing the strike movement into "high gear," following President Roosevelt's rejection yesterday of the program presented by five meat governors to force farm prices and regulate farm production and sales.

Among their aides, however, there was a disposition to support the strike only as a symbol of unrest and as unlikely to reduce farm marketings substantially. They pointed to warnings by Wallace after the farm act was passed by congress that gradual improvement rather than quick, sensational price rises was what he expected from it.

PRICE INCREASES SCORED BY BORAH

Program of Exploitation Hampering 'Buy Now' Drive, He Says.

PARMA, Idaho, Nov. 5.—(P)—Declaring the administration's "buy now" campaign "is not progressing at all," Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, tonight demanded restoration and enforcement of the anti-trust laws to stop "a brazen program of exploitation" through high prices.

Speaking before an assembly of residents of this rural community on the Boise river, the senator declared the "buy now" campaign was "in fact, receding."

"The sales volume as shown by experts," he continued, "is significantly unfavorable. There is perhaps more than one reason for this, but the controlling reason is the prices which confront the buyer."

"Many of these prices are high beyond all reason and conscience. If they were 'Blue Eagle' prices, it would make this bird a bird of prey instead of a bird of protection. They are in many instances, in my judgment, the prices fixed by combines and monopolies, sheltered by the broad wings of the double-headed eagle. The hiding behind the increase of labor and the processing tax, making these an excuse, prices have been pushed up when people are urged to buy they are really urged to buy, in many instances, at monopolistic prices."

"We are gathering the fruits, in a large measure, of the mistaken act in suspending the anti-trust laws last winter. It should not have been done. The people are paying for that mistake now. It was assumed that the public would be protected through these codes, but that assumption was based upon wrong premises and was without a sufficient desire to restrain monopolies."

Describing it as a "long continued story," he said "for 20 years both the leading political parties have fiercely assailed monopolies during the campaign, to become not only silent but subservient after the campaign was over. The old parties have surrendered to monopolies in these recent years as completely as the democratic and whig parties surrendered to slavery before the war."

Declaring prices of things "essential to the comfort and health of the farmer and laborer," have risen from 62 to 120 per cent, he said, "this means denial, the denial which brings suffering for millions of men and women who are entering the fourth winter of the depression."

Asserting "the world has been astounded that the United States should have from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 men and women out of employment," he went on to say that "perhaps an

The groups division canvass will be conducted this week in addition to the "advance gifts" campaign. Under the general chairmanship of Charles J. Currie, with Mrs. Arthur J. Harris as co-chairman, appeals will be made to the 70,000 who are engaged under the four classifications of the groups division—commercial, industrial, public utilities and public officials.

The groups embracing those in commercial pursuits will be canvassed by volunteers under the leadership of W. A. Parker, with Mrs. W. Eugene Harrison as co-chairman.

George Vinship is chairman of the industrial group with Mrs. Norman Elsas, co-chairman.

The public utility group workers are headed by Aubrey Milam with R. G. Loe as co-chairman.

James L. Wells, chairman, and A. Steve Nance, co-chairman, will direct the canvass of the public officials group, consisting of federal, state, county and city officials and school employees and officers.

The campaign will be given further impetus by radio addresses by prominent citizens. Through Dr. C. R. Stantler, chairman of the radio committee, arrangements have been made for a three-station hookup so that all addresses may be presented simultaneously by WSB, WGST and WJTL.

Herbert Porter, chairman of the Community Chest, will be the speaker Monday night at 8:45 o'clock. Other speakers this week will be as follows: Tuesday, 6 P. M.—Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright.

Wednesday, 10:30 P. M.—Frank Miller.

Thursday, 6 P. M.—Joe Horacek.

Friday, 6:30 P. M.—Dr. J. R. McCarver.

Saturday, 6:45 P. M.—Edgar Neely.

Plans for conducting the Community Chest campaign in College Park were made at a meeting called at the First Baptist church in College Park Sunday afternoon by Mayor E. D. Barrett.

Joe Horacek, chairman of Atlanta's individual gifts division and Mrs. Oscar Palmour, co-chairman, assisted in the organization. Others on the program included Mrs. J. L. Freeman and Mrs. C. D. Center.

Hunters Must Change Dogs.

A recent ruling by the New Hampshire fish and game department provides that the same dog cannot be used to bag more than 10 raccoons in a season.

Explanation of that may be found in the fact that even in the years of 1923, 1927 and 1928, the golden years of the fur trade, there were 75,000,000 people in the United States that had an annual income of less than $800 a year.

Writers Lean to 'Straight' Drinks

As Carmel Folk Considers Fine Art.

CARMEI, Cal., Nov. 5.—(P)—Formation of "the society for the advancement of the fine art of drinking" was announced here today by a group of Carmel writers and artists.

Mayor John Catlin, speaking for the new organization, said it would carry on an "educational campaign" that would bring advice from more than 100 American connoisseurs of alcoholic beverages on the art of elbow lifting.

The new society didn't await the formality of prohibition repeal to announce the preferences and prejudices it had collected from several noted Americans whose contributions were as follows:

H. L. Mencken, author—"I detect all mixed drinks and drink them to be polite. They are, to decent wine and beer, as boarding-house hash is to roast, wild duck."

Irvin S. Cobb, author—"Mint julep: Take from the cold spring some water, pure as angels are; mix it with sugar till it seems like oil. Then take a glass and crush your mint within it with a spoon. Crush it around the border of the glass and leave no place untouched. Then throw the mint away—it is a sacrifice. Fill with cracked ice the glass; pour in the quantity of bourbon which you want. It trickles slowly through the ice. Let it have time to cool, then pour your sugared water over it. No spoon is needed; no stirring allowed; just let it stand a moment. Then around the brim place springs of mint, so that the one who drinks may find taste and odor at one draft."

Mayor Catlin—"Five fingers bourbon whisky in a glass; then in another glass a few drops of grenadine. Half a spoon bar sugar, juice of half a lime. Mix well. Four contents of second glass on the floor. Then drink contents of first glass."

Sinclair Lewis, author, reported he did not limit himself to one drink, but four of his favorites were Plater's punch, mint julep, Fishhouse punch and "Americana."

George Jean Nathan, dramatic critic, le, responded to the society's request for his preference as follows: "You speak of intelligent drinkers and in the same breath of mixtures."

Julian Street, playwright and author—"I detect cocktails and the usual like of mixed drinks. My appetizer is—old dry Amontillado sherry with one drop of—bitters."

106 Million Free Trees.

The Pennsylvania department of forests and waters has distributed 106,000,000 trees "free of charge" since the department began its reforestation movement in the state.

'Splitting' Headaches

Until she learned why she was always miserable—and found out about NITRO-NIGHT—she was splitting her head with every body. This safe, dependable, all-vegetable laxative brought quick relief and quiet nerves because it cleared her system of poisonous wastes—made bowel action easy and regular. Thousands take NITRO-NIGHT daily. It's such a sure, pleasant corrective. Non-habit-forming. No bad after-effects. At your druggist's—4c.

"TUMS"

Quick relief for acid indigestion, heartburn. Only 10c.

FALSE TEETH

Can Not Embarrass

Most wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their teeth dropped or slipped at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREIN on your plates. Make false teeth stay in place and feel comfortable. Sweetens breath. Get FASTEREIN at Lane's or any other good drug store.—(adv.)

THE WORLD'S

News Behind the News

By Pierre Van Passen

The Man Who Won The War.

Lloyd George, who is writing his memoirs, has just published the second volume of his recollections. Everything Mr. George has to say is of surpassing interest, but one incident he mentions in the second volume, especially demands attention. It is the chapter devoted to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, the former president of the Zionist organization.

Dr. Weizmann was a professor of chemistry at Manchester University when the war broke out. At a certain period of the war, toward 1917, when England was seriously considering dropping out because of exhaustion, (Lloyd George says this himself) one of the great difficulties was the preparation of acetone, which is a component required in the manufacture of high explosive. Without it England was doomed. Dr. Weizmann came to the rescue by inventing a procedure by which acetone could be manufactured from maize. And so, in Lloyd George's words, became "one of the men who won the war." By way of reward the British government offered him a peerage, a gift of 100,000 pounds sterling and a pension for life.

Dr. Weizmann declined the gift. He asked Lloyd George, who insisted that he be rewarded for his invaluable service to the allied cause, that something be done for the Jewish people in respect to Palestine. This was the origin of the movement to restore the ancient Jewish state in Palestine. Later, Lord Balfour became interested, and ended up in championing the cause of a reconstituted Jewish Palestine.

No Alarm Yet.

Lord Lloyd, former sirdar of Egypt, for whom I have a great respect, even if he is a Tory die-hard and under conservative, thinks there is no reason for alarm yet in Europe. Even if Germany is rearming, he said, she is in no position whatever to do any harm. She will require many years at the least to have a real European today is a bad atmosphere of suspicion and fear.

Lord Lloyd took the side of France openly and squarely which, in his estimation, is the only decent thing to do now. The Locarno treaty, he said, was part of a policy which assumed that you could get from the other powers those guarantees for France's security without which France would not and could not disarm. Eight years have passed and the other powers have not given those guarantees. For that reason the prospect of disarmament is as remote as ever. For you cannot now expect France to disarm without those guarantees with Germany in her present dangerous mood.

Turkey Opens Doors.

Professor Einstein has written a letter to the Turkish government asking that 15 German professors be permitted to enter that country. The 15 men named are among the highest authorities in various branches in medical science. If they are admitted to Turkey, they will be permitted to open a joint clinic in Constantinople.

The Turkish government has also received a request from a large number of German manufacturers, who live in exile in Paris, to be permitted to build factories in Turkey. It is believed that the Turkish government will accede to both demands, which confirms the saying of the soldiers at the front who had fought the "Turk." "The Turk is tolerant and a gentleman."

DAY BY DAY

In Georgia's History

Two years ago today Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Dr. Michael Hoke as surgeon in chief of the Warm Springs foundation.

On November 12, 1832, the people of 61 counties in Georgia sent 134 delegates to the anti-tariff convention in what city?

For the two best 25-word original answers to the foregoing question, Loew's Grand theater cooperation, with The Constitution, will award two pairs of guest tickets to see "Meet the Baron," a play now being mailed to the Day-By-Day Editor. Constitution, must bear a postmark not later than midnight tomorrow.

"Meet the Baron" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, starring Jack Pearl, Jimmy Durante, Zita Zita and Ted Healy. This picture started a week's run at the Grand Friday.

The common tapeworm in this country is the beef tapeworm, Taenia saginata. This means means beef tapeworm. The word "saginata" is the host's expense. Evidently the popular mythical notion that a tapeworm consumes a lot of nourishment and that anyone who eats a great deal therefore probably supports such a parasite, was conceived by the ancients. But there is no truth in it. In the first place, the individual who has a tapeworm usually has no symptoms.

No disturbance of health, or if there is any disturbance produced by the unbidden guest it is seldom serious. In the next place, we actually find that most persons who harbor tapeworms are very well nourished, in fact overnourished, and they have no more appetite for or capacity for food than have persons who are not hosts of tapeworms.

So be sensible and look the tapeworm straight in the eye and don't take the quick doctor's hook too seriously.

The beef tapeworm occurs only in the intestine of man and the adult worm in the intestine of man is embedded in beef and called Cysticercus—the beef carcass so infested is called "meat with worms."

Man becomes infested by eating raw or underdone beef. The cysticercus or measles are most frequently found in the beef heart, diaphragm and jaw muscles, but occur in all the muscles. Cattle become infested by ingesting the eggs of the tapeworm, passed in human feces, which contaminate the feed or water of cattle.

This parasite reaches a length of 20 to 30 feet, and consists of long chains of flat broad segments resembling cucumber seeds. The head is the smallest segment, hard to distinguish except under magnifying glass. The segments gradually increase in size toward the tail end until they become as large as the last joint of a finger.

Another tapeworm, less common but more likely to disturb the health of the host is the pork tapeworm, Taenia solium, which means the solitary tapeworm, though sometimes more than one is present. It grows to a length of 10 to 15 feet. The head, smaller than the head of a pin, has hooks with which it clings to the mucous membrane, so that it is hard to dislodge. The rules are the same as for the beef tapeworm, but the host's head is smaller than that of the beef tapeworm. The adult tapeworm lives in the intestine of man; the larva in the flesh of the hog. The head of the tapeworm is called "bladderworms" or Cysticercus celulosus.

A third kind of tapeworm, the fish tapeworm, Diphyllobothrium latum, the largest of all human tapeworms, was formerly almost unknown in this country, but has been encountered with increasing frequency in recent years, particularly among immigrants from the Baltic countries who have a fondness for certain raw fish. The fish in the waters of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan and other northern states or provinces have been found infested. Dogs or cats that feed on the fish may harbor the fish tapeworm and infect man.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

FINESSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Welles pressure probably has been the greatest influence in undermining the Grau San Martin government of Cuba.

It has been one of those things about which statesmen cannot talk openly, because nothing can be proved. But in private they speak rather freely about it, and give great credit to our ambassador.

A diplomat has to be good to get away with the things Welles did down there. If he were caught in any open or official act he would have been branded as a meddler in Cuban affairs. Latin America would have been aroused. The consequences might have been serious.

RECOVERY The state department was about ready to run out on Welles a few weeks ago. He led it up a blind alley by sponsoring the De Cespedes regime, which was swiftly overturned.

Some departmental officials wanted to recognize the revolutionary Grau San Martin government, but Welles held them off. He furnished private reports indicating each succeeding week would be Grau San Martin's last. The officials grew suspicious and murmured about the advisability of getting Welles out of Cuba.

During the past few days it began to appear that his promise was finally coming true. The departmental officials began cheering for him—good old Welles, they knew he would come through.

GOLD A highly trustworthy insider in Wall Street asserts he knows that the Hearst estate sold out its holdings in the Homestake gold mine some time ago. The sale is said to have been in the open market at around $150 a share.

The buyer was supposed to be a prominent investment banking firm, unquestionably acting for a customer who wanted to keep his name quiet.

MOVIES You will not see General Johnson in the movies much from now on. He has decided they do not do justice to his beauty and he is probably correct.

Not long ago the newsreels set up their cameras in his office to photograph the dispatch of an NRA flag to the Byrd polar expedition. When Johnson saw them, he put on a scene which would have done credit to Garbo. The gist of his argument was that the sound film must withdraw, for he would have no more of movies.

The dispatch of the Byrd flag was photographed by still cameras only.

The movie men were somewhat displeased at Johnson's attitude. They have co-operated thoroughly with NRA. They remarked that they withdrew that some time Johnson would be around asking to get his picture in the movies.

TELEPHONE Our currency talks with the British were not handled by the British war debt mission here. Some incidental matters may have been taken up through it, but the real discussions were conducted via long-distance telephone between Governor Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank and his friend, Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England.

The main purpose of the conversations was to avoid an international currency war with Britain. Mr. Roosevelt designated Harrison for the long-distance peace mission.

WORDS One little word has started a major inside conflict between the NRA and the retailers who opposed price fixing.

Roosevelt altered the retail code so that a merchant may sell without profit, adding: "But the selling price should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor."

Later the NRA regulations stated the selling price must include labor costs.

The opposition has a suit ready to file so the courts can determine whether "should" means "must."

SUGAR The sugar men are back on the job. At present they are conducting a very active campaign in hotel rooms trying to revive the marketing agreement.

Their work has been helped by certain protests from the west against the administration policy.

If the beef sugar farmers want the agreement revived, now is the time to howl.

NOTES The Japanese have been making some ambitious moves to improve their railroad transportation in Manchuria. That will help when the war with Russia comes.

Our officials are convinced that Hitler is sincerely trying to stop Nazi attacks on Americans. They are not inclined to be hard about the matter.

Plumbers were called in to mend the pipes in the old Russian embassy a few days ago, which indicates recognition will not be long now. The Soviet trade representatives went to a hotel here to arrange a dinner recently and the hotel people submitted a menu, containing Salad Romanoff. The Soviets pointed out they had the Romanoff influence many years ago. It developed the hotel had dug up dinner menus used from the old imperial Russian days in an effort to provide strictly Russian dishes. They served the Russian dishes but eliminated the salad.

You Can't Beat a Player Who

Cheats, But Why Let Him Play?

By Robert Quillen

When you are young and healthy and in love with your job, working for your living is fun. It is much like a game, except that it makes you feel useful and respectable. You spend your money freely and feel no anxiety.

But when you begin to slow up or jobs become scarce, you begin to think about the future and worry because you haven't saved any money.

Having to work for your bread doesn't seem fun any more. You begin to feel resentful. Life seems hard and unfair.

At this stage you get the habit of making comparisons. It seems unjust that you should work hard and live in poverty and miss most of the good things of life while other men who do no work live on the fat of the land.

If these men were morally and intellectually superior to you, the difference in your fortunes wouldn't seem so unfair. But that isn't the explanation.

You are handicapped by the rules. These rules were made by society to protect life and property and enable people to enjoy the fruits of their labor in peace and security. You do not like the rules, but the rules are necessary and you observe them. You do not lie or cheat or steal.

By observing the rules, you voluntarily accept a handicap. You never obtain as much as you could. Almost every day you have opportunities to steal automobiles or take money from your employer or make a profit by lying to those who trust you.

You don't do these things because you aren't that kind of man. You play by the rules, and you have a sense of honor and a conscience. These other men, who have neither honor nor conscience, are not restrained by rules. They feel free to take what they can. Some of them are millionaires.

Don't you realize what the nation's crooks are doing to you? Would you continue to sit in a game, meekly losing your earnings, if you knew the other players were breaking the rules?

Why do you let them get away with it? Big and little crooks get billions every year by breaking the rules. You obey, and you make up the loss. All such losses are eventually added to the overhead of business and taken out of your wages or added to the cost of things you buy.

The "smart guy" with soft hands and hard eyes is your enemy. He spends the money you earn. When will honest men learn to organize against him?

TENSION STILL FELT

THROUGHOUT PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Normal outward conditions prevailed in Palestine today after the recent rioting by Arabs against Jewish immigration, but the feeling of tension had not completely subsided.

Only recently Miss Guinan, on what was to be her last tour, visited one of the evangelist's services on the Pacific coast.

Many of her Broadway "stunts" frankly were staged for the benefit of her beloved scrapbook. The period her club would attract a clientele that ran from $100 tippers from Wall Street to school marm's from away anxious to see if any or all they had heard was true.

At adjoining tables they helped to find and sometimes did see "Jimmy" Walker, Harry K. Thaw, Jack Dempsey, or perhaps Lady Diana Manners.

Asked Quick Funeral.

In 1931, with an extraordinary force of dancing girls, Broadway cowboys and musicians, she was exiled from France on her round-the-world tour for not having a permit, but she came back unabashed and drove about town in her Belgian-motored bullet-proof limousine.

Her matrimonial ventures—three in number, and all ended in divorce—she preferred to forget. Only occasionally did she speak of her first

Praises Dr. Brady's Stand

On School Home Work

Editor Constitution: May I say how greatly appreciated was Dr. Brady's recent article in The Constitution on the evils of school homework.

The recent controversy regarding homework in the Atlanta schools makes Dr. Brady's article most timely. I wish it was possible for you to draw even more attention to the opinions expressed by Dr. Brady, by again printing the writing of the sometimes caustic, but always reasonable doctor.

To me it has seemed ridiculous to compel young children, even in the lower grades of grammar school, to carry to and from school 10 to 14 pounds weight of books when, in reality, they learn so little.

And it seems even more ridiculous to teach high school students all kinds of fancy subjects which so rarely help them in their future business careers, when the fundamental things such as spelling, writing and arithmetic of the better things, and conversation (our greatest medium of life) are not more thoroughly learned.

Personally, I think school work should be done at school and the co-operation of the parents so continually asked for, in simply placing their responsibility where it does not belong.

How many parents, the fathers in business and the mothers at home, have ever asked the cooperation of a teacher in their work?

And we all know that much of the excessive homework is the effort of the parent, and not of the pupil.

With three months' vacation in the summer and many days holiday during the year, much time must be lost which should be made up at school, and not at home.

The most pungent paragraph in Dr. Brady's article is perhaps the one as follows:

"As an innocent bystander I have been observing this homework evil for years. I have found that the best grade schools and high schools have the least homework or none at all, while the poorest grade schools with the least competent teachers have the most homework."

And he goes on to say, "A business man or woman knows it is unwise to carry business home. Why can't the same common sense be applied to this homework racket? If the school day is not long enough for the requirements of instruction then lengthen the school day."

Some people may not agree with Dr. Brady, but how can anyone be sure that school work should be done at home is hard to understand.

Of course no individual teacher is to blame. They are without doubt doing the very best they can under existing conditions.

The blame must rest on the heads of the executives who insist on such a system.

More power to men like Dr. Brady who, at least, have the courage of their convictions.

Yours sincerely,
CHARLES BOROUGHS.

TEXAS GUINAN

TAKEN BY DEATH

from the hinterlands were "big butter and egg men." Out-of-town buyers became spendthrifts and merriment reigned after midnight.

"Texas" presided. She introduced celebrities to her patrons and her girls to big spenders.

Beneath the spotlight, in the center of the crowded club floor, of course, she brought forth her performers with a special spiel for each.

When she wasn't greeting customers with "Hello, sucker," she was rattling loudly with a noisemaking contraption for silence followed by the inevitable, "Give the little girl a great big kiss."

In an article entitled "How I Make $10,000 a Week," she explained her likes and dislikes:

"I like noise, rhinestone heels, customers, plenty of attention and red velvet bathing suit. I smoke like a five-alarm fire. I eat an aspidochelone every night before I go to bed. I call every man I don't know 'Fred' and they love it. I have six uncles. I sleep on my right side.

Margarita. I eat a dozen oranges every day and I once took off 35 pounds in two weeks. I guess that settles my personality."

Acquainted Each Time. The night clubs Texas ran or presided over were raided 10 times in 10 years by police and the most she called "Uncle Sam's dripping dry boys" but "Texas" herself only spent a few hours in prison before her lawyer got her out on bail.

The climax of this phase came in April, 1929, when she was acquitted in federal court in New York of a charge of maintaining a nuisance at the Salon Royale, where she was hostess and the government charged liquor was sold.

From what the police could learn they judged the occupants had been sitting in the kitchen at the rear. The plane swept everything before it, diving all the way to the ground.

An adjoining house, occupied by Louise Lambertson, negro, and her three children, James, 5; Louise, 3; and Raymond, 2, was hit by the flames, but fireman saved them from serious damage.

Airport attendants and others had rushed from the airport, and the first company came from Tinton Falls, Shrewsbury, Red Bank and Eatontown, but the King bungalow was beyond salvage.

Sheriff's posse had been a member of the aviation division of the national guard since its organization in 1930. He was married and the father of an 11-year-old daughter. He was 26 and a foundry foreman in Newark.

Three investigations got under way immediately. One by Robb Wilson, state commissioner of aviation, headed one. State, county and local police are conducting the second, and the third is headed by the national guard.

Board of inquiry, headed by Major Roger L. Copey, commander of the aviation unit of the national guard in this state.

Johnnie was commander of the 119th photo section and president of the aerial exploration company, of New York. He was a former lieutenant in the Peruvian army.

SARRAUT GOVERNMENT

FARM LOAN BRANCH ESTABLISHED AT ADEL

ADEL, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The first of several production credit associations to be formed in Georgia for making government credit available to farmers has been set up here with sufficient capital to loan Cook county farmers $75,000. H. G. Waller, field representative of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, S. C., came here to help organize the branch.

Under the program of the Columbia agency, credit corporations may be established by units of 10 or more farmers who wish to obtain loans for general agricultural purposes. The financing will be for production and harvesting of crops, breeding, raising and fattening of live stock or production of live stock and poultry products.

Directors of the Adel association include W. R. Thompson, E. E. Milton, J. E. Pitts, R. M. Van Brackle, W. R. Crumpton, J. E. Lovette and G. C. Hendry. It is understood other counties soon will have similar organizations.

HENRY TURNER RITES AT QUITMAN MONDAY

QUITMAN, Ga., Nov. 5.—Henry Turner, prominent citizen, died last night in Archibald hospital, in Thomasville, after a brief illness. He was the eldest son of the late Congressman Henry G. Turner and member of a prominent pioneer family in this section.

Surviving him are his sister, Mrs. Sam S. Bennett, of Albany, and one brother, S. Morton Turner, of Quitman, prominent in state public life. Mr. Turner was first married to Miss Marie Robertson, of California, and children of this marriage are Robertson Turner, of Adel; Archer Turner, Quitman; Morton Turner, Alabama; Sister Margaret, of the Sisterhood of Saint Genevieve, in North Carolina, and James Turner, now in California. His second marriage was to Miss Susan Jarrell, of Thomasville, who survives him also.

Funeral services will be from the Turner residence Monday afternoon at 5:30, with the Rev. C. C. Jarrell, of Atlanta, and the Rev. Armand T. Eyer officiating.

$30,000 COTTON LOANS MADE IN BARNESVILLE

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 5.—More than $30,000 will be loaned over to farmers of Lamar county next week, according to announcement today made by W. B. Smith Sr., president of the First National bank of Barnesville. The money is in the form of loans, made possible by the 10-cent cotton plan announced recently by the federal government.

Why guard against this and neglect your own physical condition?

You may be extremely cautious about going out in bad weather. Your experience during past winters may have taught you that you're much more susceptible to illness after exposure.

But what inner defense can you offer against the ills that prevail at this time of year? This is what many people are asking. They have an entirely new conception about winter ills. It's as important to build up resistance, they've found, as it is to guard against exposure.

A fine physical condition—good resistance—physicians say, is the first defense people can offer against illness.

How important to get the factors which increase resistance! Two, in particular, are helpful—Vitamin A and D. They may be obtained from halibut and cod-liver oils. Vitamin D is also available in Viosterol.

Now, however, a vitamin concentrate made from all three of these sources, supplies people with an abundance of these valuable resistance-builders. Squibb Adex Tablets—10 D.

Each Adex tablet contains 1000 units of Vitamin A and 2450 units of Vitamin D.

Taken every day Adex tablets help increase inner resistance against winter ills. They help you meet the extra tax of exposure and indoor living. Available at any reliable drug store.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Port News.
SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Arrived: None.
Sailed: None.

Counterfeiter Caught.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—A white man held here on a charge of circulating counterfeit half dollars, who gave the name of John Morris, which is regarded as an alias, carried several small bags of the coins, according to a discovery made by J. E. Kilner, operative for the treasury department.

Hit-Run Victim Recovers.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—After remaining unconscious for four days in a Valdosta hospital, B. G. Grice, a white man, is showing signs of returning to normal. Grice was struck Saturday night by a hit-and-run automobile on the highway south of Valdosta and left by the roadside where he was later found and brought here for treatment.

Jobless Aid Given.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 5.—Three hundred and seventy-five RFO workers received wages from the Lamar county relief organization this week, according to a statement by Mrs. C. H. Matthews, administrator. In addition, 32 families were given aid in the form of vegetables, flour, meal and other products from the RFO garden and acreage which was leased by the city from the board of regents when the Georgia Industrial College was abolished. Several hundred packages of garden seeds have also been distributed.

GENERAL B. WINSHIP TO RETIRE IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Major General Blanton Winship, whose 35 years of active service included the Spanish-American War, the World War, and frequent diplomatic missions as judge advocate general and special presidential commissioner, will retire from active service in the United States army November 30, he announced here Saturday.

The man who served as first lieutenant in the Spanish-American War, assisted in the direction of a cleanup of war operations and reparations in Europe after the World War, and was appointed judge advocate general in 1931, will return to Macon around the latter part of the year.

His most recent mission carried him to Liberia in West Africa as a special commissioner of President Roosevelt's and a member of a League of Nations committee on Liberia.

AUGUSTA INCUMBENTS
REFUSED RE-ELECTION

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Three incumbents were defeated Saturday for re-election to Richmond county's board of education from city wards.

They are Dr. George M. Woodbury, president; Dr. Carl G. Meyer and R. G. McGowan.

The seven successful candidates by wards: First, J. E. Dicks; second, Mrs. John W. Walker (unopposed); third, Mrs. Robbie G. Mulligan; fourth, Thomas J. Fender; fifth, John G. Thompson; sixth, Mrs. Jesslyn W. Baillie; seventh, J. O. Stallings.

J. M. MURRAH SUCCEEDS
AT COLUMBUS HOME

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—John Morgan Murrah, 64, retired banker and a former member of the state legislature from Muscogee county, died at his home here Sunday after a brief illness.

Mr. Murrah was born at Shiloh, Ga., and was a son of the late George and Amanda Delosch Murrah. For several years he was a member of the Columbus police commission and served as chairman of that body. He served two terms in the legislature.

He is survived by his widow, a brother, E. L. Murrah, of Columbus, and a number of nephews and nieces. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday.

ADMIRAL BYRD'S SHIP
IS NEARING EQUATOR

S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, AT SEA.
Nov. 5.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's antarctic expedition aboard this flagship at noon today was approximately 200 miles south of Balboa, C. Z., preparing to cross the equator tomorrow night.

The non-seamen on board were busy getting the 350 tons of food and equipment in readiness for unloading at the Bay of Wales, 4,500 miles to the south, where the leader hopes to arrive November 25.

"Getting all that stuff ashore and into Little America is one of the toughest jobs the expedition faces," the admiral remarked.

"Every piece of it must be handled half a dozen times. We shall have less than two months in which to accomplish this, and the blizzards and constant threat of drifting ice while unloading make it a task of the first magnitude."

SLAIN AMERICAN GIRL
BURIED IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Joan Winters, the American dancer who was found slain here Friday at the foot of the Mount of Olives, near to the Garden of Gethsemane, was buried with simple rites in the American mission's cemetery today.

An American clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Shap, officiated at the services, which were attended by the United States consul and the vice consul. Police authorities said today that their investigations have revealed no further developments in the mysterious murder of Winters and an Indian, believed to be Hyler Abadi, whose body was found beside hers.

The police are working on the theory that the couple was killed by Arab rioters while the man and woman were taking a stroll in the moonlight.

State Deaths
And Funerals

MRS. ALICE KNAPP FUTCH.
THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 5.—Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Knapp Futch, 71, who died Friday night, following an attack of pneumonia, were held here today.

The Rev. T. F. Callaway, of the First Baptist church officiated at the services, after which the body was interred in Laurel Hill cemetery.

The deceased was born near Metcalfe in this county and was married to T. F. Futch, a native of Wilcox county. Two sons survive, T. A. Futch, of this city, and John W. Futch, Milledgeville, Fla.; one sister, Mrs. M. M. Lill, of Metcalfe; two brothers, D. F. Knapp, Boston, and W. T. Knapp, Metcalfe.

Mrs. Futch moved to Thomasville from Metcalfe about 25 years ago and has since made her home here. Thomas county soil made her home here. Mrs. Futch was 120 years, being one of the most distinguished families in the county.

METHODIST STUDENTS HEADED BY QUILLIAN

MACON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—William Quillian, Emory University student, of Nashville, Tenn., was elected president of the Methodist State Student conference for the coming year at a meeting of the conference here Saturday.

Miss Laura Lipscomb, also an Emory student, was named vice president; Miss Elizabeth Lanford, Andrews College, secretary, and Tom Scott, University of Georgia, treasurer.

The conference, which has been the guest of Wesleyan College, closed at 11 o'clock Sunday morning with services in Mulberry Street Methodist church. Dr. W. A. Smart, Emory University, spoke to more than 100 delegates from 12 different colleges.

Rev. Lester Rumble, of Athens, spoke to the delegates in the Mulberry church Saturday. He discussed the church as a force in the well integrated life. Dr. Ed F. Cook, Macon, conducted a forum discussion of the larger interests of life.

GAS STATION OWNER
SHOOT WHITE MAN

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 5.—Roy Caldwell, well-known young white man, was shot in the head and probably fatally wounded by Frank Shaw at a late hour Saturday night at a filling station operated by Shaw. After closing for the night Shaw remained in his store to serve as a watchman. He told officers that Caldwell came to his station and went away several times before pumping enough gasoline to fill the tank to his car.

As Caldwell started to turn it into his own tank, Shaw fired a charge of birdshot, the full load taking effect in Caldwell's head.

Sheriff Gaddis was called to the scene, brought Caldwell to town for treatment and late Sunday he was reported hovering between life and death at the home of his mother.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

CONTOVERSY.
Among those highly enjoyable moments of a naturalist's life, there are few that are more satisfying than a good hard round of argument over some subject that is not particularly important, but which gives a chance to choose a side and defend a position with all the evidence and passion which you can remember. While not in any sense productive in a scientific way, these arguments clear the air and leave it more capable of transmitting the light rays of facts which otherwise might be obscured.

I had such an argument recently about whether or not squirrels swim. My opponent declared in no uncertain terms that squirrels could not swim. With equal warmth, I took the position that they not only could, but did voluntarily take to the water for the purpose of crossing to another shore. Back and forth the battle raged. We were just beginning to have a wonderful time when the opponent changed his tactics suddenly, and by inquiring closely, forced me to admit that the red squirrel was the only species that I had actually seen swim.

Then with calm superiority he asserted that of course he had been talking about the cat-squirrel (eastern gray squirrel), all the time. Baffled, I gave it up for the moment. When it was too late to do me any good, I found a reference in the literature to the effect that the last-mentioned squirrel, while not as good a swimmer as the red squirrel, is known to migrate at times and in these marches to swim whatever bodies of water up to a mile in width happen to be in the pathway.

In volume 2 of the "Annals of the Roosevelt Wild Life Forest Experiment Station," entitled "The Red Squirrel, Its Life, History and Habits," by Dr. Robert T. Hatt, there are several pages of references to the swimming habits of this species, and one of them sets forth the idea that the bushy tail is spread as a sail, and the animal therefore is a sort of anti-mated schooner. The spirit of the man for whom this foundation is named should indicate the trustworthiness of the reports that the foundation publishes. Dr. Hatt, of course, includes such references as the above only for the sake of completeness, and for the sake of giving an idea of the natural history of other days. He provides plenty of authenticated evidence for the swimming of the squirrel, and in defending my friend Hatt, I am defending one of the most successful of the younger mammalogists.

Squirrels swim. I have seen them, and my friends have seen them. No, we were not together in the north Georgia mountains when it happened, either.

PANTER TO GIVE FACTS OF ARREST IN MUNICH

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Noel Pantner, British journalist who was arrested and held in Munich several days before his release last week, arrived in London today and will go to the foreign office tomorrow to place the facts of his arrest and imprisonment before British officials.

He said today that he still was waiting to know what offense he had committed in Germany and stated: "Although I was interrogated twice by secret police, I was never charged with an offense. We know my arrest was in connection with my report on a review of 20,000 storm troops, but foreign newspapers were never at any time warned that a report of the events was forbidden."

LATTER DAY SAINTS
OPEN CAPITAL CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A monument to the "perseverance, integrity, honor and heroism" of the Mormon people, the new $500,000 Washington chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was dedicated today by church dignitaries from all sections of the country.

Heading the delegation was President Heber J. Grant, seer, prophet and revelator, who had charge of the three services today.

NEW ROAD COVERING MADE BY THOMAS FIRM

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 5.—The first car load of "cold mix" asphalt, a newly-developed product for use in paving construction and repair work, which is now being manufactured by the Dawes Construction Company of this city, was run off at the plant on the Ochocknee river, five miles from Thomasville, this past week.

The new product is a mixture of sand, crushed rock, asphalt and other materials that are combined in such manner to produce a granular product similar to a gummy sand which can be stored practically indefinitely and used cold without the use of heat in the laying of new paving or repairing old. The material is spread out and rolled down under pressure after which it solidifies and hardens similar to the ordinary asphalt which is melted by heat and poured out and spread while in a plastic condition. Extensive operations are now being carried on at this asphalt plant.

LONDON JEWS VOTE
BOYCOTT ON GERMANY

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A Jewish boycott on German goods was voted at a conference today of 500 delegates representing 150,000 Jews in all parts of the country.

The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, placed an official boycott on German goods and appealed to Jews in all parts of the British empire to abstain from purchasing or using German goods or services so long as the Jews in Germany are denied the status of full equality and citizenship.

Credulous Valdostans Fleeced In 'Old-Age Pension List' Fraud

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—Postoffice inspectors have been ordered to Valdosta to investigate "use of the mails to defraud" cases which are being pushed throughout this section.

Quite a number of white people are calling on the chamber of commerce and other agencies here for application blanks for "old age pensions" from the government.

Local investigation revealed the fact that some person or persons were sending out notices through the mails to aged persons telling them if they would send 30 cents in cash they would be placed on the "government old age pension list" and receive a monthly check from the government.

Many reputable persons have stated that such letters have been sent out and say that the blanks are being furnished applicants at some place in Valdosta.

From the number asking about the blanks it appears that a large amount of business has been transacted in this fraud already and inspectors have been placed on the trail. It is said that originally the scheme came through the mails from some point in Canada.

The plan is similar to that for which Junius Randolph, a Thomasville negro, was arrested a few days ago, and for which he is now being held in jail here on a federal indictment. However, in the case of Randolph the fraud was attempted only on negroes around Thomasville, while in the vicinity of this city white people appear to have been selected as the intended victims.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES

TO BE AMERICA'S GREATEST STUNT GIRL

● A SUDDEN NERVE-RACKING swing upward from a racing auto into a hurtling plane... It's all in the day's work for Mary Wiggins, famous stunt girl who also dives on fire into fire and does the suspension glide in mid-air while hanging only by her teeth. It means something when she says: "Camels never give me edgy nerves even when I smoke a lot."

JOE: I'm so glad to see you, Sue. Were you nervous during your first flight?
SUE: Not a bit. I smoked Camels all the way, and I never felt better! I haven't worried about nerves since I took your advice and changed to Camels.

Steady Smokers
turn to Camels

LISTEN TO MARY WIGGINS, greatest of all girl stunt performers, as she tells of her discovery that one cigarette is different from the others! She says: "I have to be sure my nerves are healthy to do my stunts, changing from a speeding auto to a plane, the high dive on fire into fire, wing walking while up in a plane, and the high-altitude parachute jump. As to smoking, I've found that Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves. I've tried all the brands. Camels are milder and better in flavor. They do not give me edgy nerves even when I am smoking a lot."

Georgia Stakes Unmanned Record Against Yale This Week

VIRGINIA TECH MEETS ALABAMA IN SOUTHERN

South Carolina Faces N. C. State; Duke Plays Maryland.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Virginia Tech, battling Alabama under conditions not quite so auspicious as a year ago, and South Carolina's Gamecocks, meeting North Carolina State, provide headline attractions in the Southern conference this week.

Duke's Blue Devils, whose exploits have given the team prestige so far this season, turn from intercollegiate football to battle with Maryland and very probably boost their ranking within the conference.

Tech's Gobblers, losing to Alabama 9 to 7 in their only defeat last season, face the Red Elephants of Tusculum on the latter's home ground with a record indicating another victory for the mighty Crimson Tide.

Unimpressive in its first few games, the Tech team played heads-up football Saturday in the 7-7 tie with Washington and Lee and Al Casey and his cohorts again show the Alabama a warm afternoon.

GAMECOCKS FAVORED.

The Gamecocks, conference leaders, are a decided favorite over North Carolina State, which at the season's opening was ranked equally strong, despite the crushing 30-to-7 defeat administered to the Gamecocks Saturday by Louisiana State University.

If South Carolina wins she will finish the season with a perfect record within the conference.

Virginia, winning her first conference victory Saturday over Maryland by the margin of six points, has worked out for her in seeking to overcome Washington and Lee's Generals at Lexington, Va. Virginia Military Institute will cross the mountains to battle the University of Kentucky, at Lexington, Ky., in a game after little hope for the "Keydets" eleven.

TARHEELS, DEACONS.

North Carolina's Tarheels, victors yesterday over State's Wolfpack after four straight defeats, engage the Wake Forest Deacons. The Clemson Tigers, who gave the Deacons a 13-to-0 drubbing yesterday, will be sharpening their claws on Wofford College.

BOWLING

The City Duck Pin league will draw many spectators to witness the several matches scheduled for tonight. The first match will be between Rambo Bakers and Friendly and Fortune Shoes should be one of the best of the lot and will more than likely have an abundance of thrills before the three games have been completed.

The two teams are tied for second place in this fast duck pin league.

Heavy Toasty play the Original Waffle Shop, and Ansley Hotel and Big's Bowling Center tie up, at 7:45 o'clock.

In the Passenger Club league the schedule is Royal Palms vs. Planters, 8 o'clock; Flairs vs. Crescents; Southlands vs. Piedmonts. One of the closest races in years prevails in this league this season.

A playoff between the Fox Manufacturing Company and Lamar-Bank's Truck Company is scheduled at 8 o'clock and the Flairs' Class and S. S. and the Crescents' class will bowl. And the Dental league resumes play at 5 o'clock.

In the Georgia Ten Pin league the schedule shows Rambo Electric vs. Wrigley Engraving Company; Cincinnati vs. Daves Plumbing and Heating; Aces vs. Chevrolet Motors.

Something different will be staged by the Power Club Bowling team at 7:30 o'clock tonight when several of the ladies and men will bowl in a mixed doubles event. The three games will have prizes being awarded to the winners.

In the special duck pin match between the Oglethorpe University Cougars and the Georgia Tech boys, the Tech team triumphed by a good margin in spite of the handicap conceded the fair bowlers. In all prob-

MALONEY FIGHTS SATURDAY NIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A strong reactionary movement in the boxing business crops up this week after the cauliflower market has passed the year's high of two title bouts within the last seven days.

Perhaps the outstanding bout on the program is scheduled to take place at Asheville, N. C. Saturday night when Jimmy Maloney, a heavyweight contender a few years ago, makes a fresh start under the management of "Pa" Strickling. Maloney, who hasn't figured importantly in the fight news since he suffered two quick knockouts at the hands of the late Ernie Schnaf two years ago, tackles Red Barry, of Washington, a heavyweight of better than average ability, over the 10-round route.

AWARDS.

Emory's athletic council has decided to award lumberjacks with a large "E" to varsity lettermen this year instead of the traditional sweater. The change was made to set off the freshman lumberjacks from the varsity lettermen.

Freshman will continue to receive blue sweaters with gold numerals. The lumberjacks will receive blue sweaters with given last year's varsity letters.

Since only three teams are represented in the Emory intramural football league this year, only 18 varsity letters will be awarded in the league.

The Emory intramural football league this year, only 18 varsity letters will be awarded in the league.

TENNIS.

Four men have reached the quarter-final round in the annual fall tennis tournament at Emory. They are Jerome Westbrook, Leonard Artoe, Chris Conyers and Bill Long.

Artoe was the only one of the four to play his third round match, the others having been defeated. Artoe won from Billy Hightower, 6-3, 7-6, 6-1.

Pairings for the fourth round are as follows:

Jerome Westbrook vs. Leonard Artoe; Chris Conyers vs. winner of Walker-Robinson match; Billy Long vs. winner of Webb-Johnson match; Winner of Wilensky-Hind match vs. winner of Walker-Robinson match.

The winner of the tournament will receive a medal, and will automatically become a member of the varsity squad, all varsity players returned from last year having been ineligible for the tourney.

A return match will be staged in the very near future.

John Bell set a new local record for five games of ten plus against the Fort Benning, Ga., team Saturday night with games of 23-19, 21-23, 21-18 for a 10-8 set as his team, the Alliance Printing Company team, won the match, winning every game and bowling a 4,926 series.

GATORS PLAY JACKETS HERE AT GRANT FIELD

Auburn Meets Oglethorpe and Ole Miss Faces Tennessee.

By Jack Troy.

The unbeaten and untied Bulldogs of Georgia, with four games remaining between them and football Valhalla, will go east this week to stalk the Yale Bulldogs in an important intercollegiate game at New Haven.

When Bulldogs meet Bulldogs is the theme of this engagement, and the Georgia Bulldogs will be the favorites. It is in this game of games that at least a couple of Georgia players will largely determine whether they are going to land on All-America selection lists.

Cy Grant, the versatile Georgia back, is the principal one. Grant has been an inspirational factor in Georgia's triumphant march to date. Captain Graham Batchelor, star lineman, is another.

A victory over Yale would leave Georgia to face Auburn Tech and Southern California with a good chance of going through undefeated.

REVEAL LITTLE.

The Bulldogs showed little in beating Florida, 14 to 0, Saturday. Cy Grant was much in evidence as he beat out a touchdown tempo, but Georgia played only straight football.

If the Bulldogs revealed anything, it was a tempered steel defense. Florida advanced past midfield but once. And the defense will improve. Which is, of course, encouraging only to Georgia supporters.

The much improved Florida 'Gators, led by their all-around coaching staff, will appear at Grant field for the annual battle of Atlanta with Georgia Tech.

Florida missed Bill Ferrazzi, regular center, and Sonny Henderson, star punting back, in the Georgia game, but they are expected to be ready for the Jackets.

Oglethorpe, with a record of four victories in six games, stands at 13 to 7. A fine passing attack on the part of the Blue Devils decided the contest. Casey Kimbrell, in the Thomasville Phantom, scored Auburn's touchdown on a brilliant 77-yard run.

AUBURN IMPROVES.

The Plainsmen are fast improving, which they showed in holding Duke to a 13-7 victory. A fine passing attack on the part of the Blue Devils decided the contest. Casey Kimbrell, in the Thomasville Phantom, scored Auburn's touchdown on a brilliant 77-yard run.

Other interesting games scheduled Saturday include Ole Miss, unbeaten but tied, and Tennessee at Knoxville; Mississippi State and Tulane at New Orleans; Sewanee and Vanderbilt at Nashville; Alabama and Virginia Tech at Tusculum; Mercer and Chattanooga at Chattanooga; Kentucky and V. M. I. at Lexington; Duke and Maryland at College Park, and South Carolina and North Carolina State at Columbia.

Saturday's results at a glance show two fine intercollegiate victories for the south—Tulane's 7-to-0 victory over the Blue Devils, and a passing game in three years, and Tennessee's triumph over powerful Georgia Washington, 13 to 0. George Washington hitherto unbeaten.

TOUGH LOSS.

Georgia Tech lost a tough game to Vanderbilt. The Jackets were leading in the fourth quarter by the only touchdown of the game when Vandy scored a safety, deliberately ruining Tech, and then late in the game won on a deflected pass that dropped into the arms of Wooten. Vandy back, who crossed the goal with the winning touchdown.

Alabama was expected to beat Kentucky but not by the one-sided score of 30 to 0. Louisiana State's victory over South Carolina, 30 to 7; Mississippi edged out Birmingham-Southern, 12 to 0; Sewanee defeated Tennessee Tech, 13 to 0; and Mississippi State turned back Mississippi College, 15 to 0.

Century's Gentlemen added a little prestige by stepping on the Fort Benning, Ga., team Saturday night with games of 23-19, 21-23, 21-18 for a 10-8 set as his team, the Alliance Printing Company team, won the match, winning every game and bowling a 4,926 series.

Oglethorpe To Play Improved Auburn Team

Petrels, Weak Defensively, Face Tough Battle on Plains This Saturday.

By Jack Troy.

Oglethorpe will go big-game hunting on the plains of Alabama this week with high-powered offensive rifles but what some are wont to call "B-B defensive guns."

The varsity played no game last week, except the one in which several members were assigned roles with the Lupton College of Liberal Arts eleven against Fort Benning. It was no more than a good workout for those who played and so the Petrels are apt to be at full strength Saturday.

The Auburn Tiger game Saturday is to be a very tough one. And particularly so since Oglethorpe has shown a lack of defensive strength all season.

DEFENSE WEAK.

If the team's defensive matched the offensive Oglethorpe would be hard to live with. But it doesn't and nothing can be done about it. For Oglethorpe just hasn't got it, to use a familiar expression, in a defensive way.

Coch Harry Robertson will go to work with the squad today and will lay stress on the defense.

Auburn is blessed with a number of fast, powerful backs—Kimbrell, Phipps, Head, Talley and Williams, to name a few—and woe it is for the defense if they are not backed up by a strong line.

STRONG LINE.

There is a rugged Auburn forward wall behind the crossed scrimmage line, to it all, the Tiger is once more growing in a menacing manner.

All of which means that all signs point "danger" to Oglethorpe's Stormy Petrels.

Oglethorpe will enter the game as the underdog. And with everything to win and little to lose. If the line holds itself together and gives the backfield a chance, Oglethorpe will make a good showing. Otherwise it will be a long, rough road back home.

GREENIES, VOLS BRING CREDIT TO SEASTERN

Coch McGugin Praises Duke; Reviews Tech-Vandy Game.

By Dan McGugin.

(Copyright, 1933, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Tulane and Tennessee brought credit to the Southeastern conference in eastern games with Colgate and Georgia Washington. For the first time in two years Colgate was defeated. This was a fine achievement by the lads from New Orleans.

Tennessee is entitled to a lot of credit for her victory over Georgia Washington. It takes courage, raw courage, to keep on fighting when everything seems to go wrong. Tennessee had lost two games, and has had serious injuries to important men. Saturday the Volunteers rallied behind the great Feathers, and are headed up again.

Alabama lost to Fordham one week ago by the closest score in football, many are justified in believing the southern team is just as good as Fordham, day in and day out. Alabama showed everything characteristic of a great football team in her smashing victory over Kentucky.

DUKE CONSISTENT.

The steadiness and consistency of Duke excite admiration. Playing hard games Saturday after Saturday, the team always gets the touchdown necessary to win. Auburn gave her a good battle, but not quite good enough.

Sewanee improves with each week. Louisiana State showed her speed, passing and power by scoring 30 points on a strong South Carolina team.

Mississippi, under wraps, won from Birmingham-Southern. It is not often that a team, in one season, comes from comparative obscurity to the top of the top of a conference as Mississippi has done.

Georgia and Florida had a beautiful battle. Georgia's 12 points for victory were the result of every foot and every minute.

EXCITING GAME.

Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt had one of those old-time hair-raising which give spectators the jitters and coaches hardening of the arteries and what used to be called fits in pioneer days.

Both teams for three quarters played pretty steady football, neither being dangerous. At the beginning of the fourth quarter Tech scored on a beautifully executed play. A running pass, perfectly timed after a fake spinner, brought the touchdown. In just a few minutes Vanderbilt was knocking at Tech's door but was thrown back on the 3-yard line. Vanderbilt arrived at this point largely because of a long and short pass.

A 60-yard punt by Dixon, which rolled out on Tech's 3-yard line, gave Vanderbilt the position for which a Tech player tipped and which went into the hands of the Vanderbilt end who had nothing but daylight between him and the goal line. Tech then threw a long pass which came within an eyelash of a touchdown but

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

ALEX. J. MORRISON

7 TENSION IN STARTING POSITION OVERCOME BY TURNING WAIST TOWARD HOLE.

ALEX. MORRISON says: Tight muscles and joints in the starting position mean more tension during the swing.

Without a certain amount of ease and relaxation to begin with it's impossible to make a smooth, accurate swing.

Getting into a starting position which will afford you a feeling of freedom and ease is not difficult if you take the trouble to turn your stomach forward.

You needn't change the position of your feet, just twist your body around so that your stomach almost faces the objective toward which you're playing. This forward twist of your body serves to loosen up muscles and joints which cause most of your trouble.

Ham Shoot Won

By L. E. Draper

L. E. Draper won the "ham shoot" held Saturday at the Capital View Gun club at Fort McPherson.

Draper and L. E. Duke tied for top honors, but in the shoot-off, Draper was victorious. Both men had handicaps.

In the principal event of the day, Buddy Jones, southern skeet champion, broke 25 straight.

Mr. Mrs. McCollister Celebrate Anniversary.

Of interest to a wide circle of friends was the golden wedding anniversary which was celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McCollister Sr., on November 1 at their home on Bellevue drive, N. E.

Decorations of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and dahlias were effectively arranged throughout the rooms. The table had for the central decoration a three-tiered wedding cake in white, embossed in gold. Mrs. McCollister received her guests wearing a soft black crepe and satin gown, lace trimmed, and her shoulder bouquet was of Claudia Perpetua roses and valley lilies, tied with gold ribbon.

Assisting in entertaining the guests were the eight children: Mrs. W. G. Long, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Curtis McCollister, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Mrs. W. O. Slater, Miss Margaret McCollister, Harry M. Louie and William Thomas, Jr. Fifteen grandchildren were also present and assisted in entertaining.

Scholarship Winners.

Announcement is made today that the winners of the Murphy Junior High school and Roy Browne Junior High school are the winners in the Steffen Thomas scholarship contest, which has been conducted through the Atlanta Woman's Club.

The judges, Miss Cornelia Cunningham, Mrs. Lafayette Butler, Lewis Skidmore and Steffen Thomas, awarded honorable mention to the following contestants: Carl Vreeman, William Spencer Knapp, Hazel Williamson, Mela Wellborn, Grace Crockett and Joyce Duval. Each of these scholarships is valued at $300 and will be of a year's duration. Mr. Thomas will communicate with the winners within a week and give them the necessary information as to when instruction will begin.

Mr. Thomas requests those who entered drawings for the contest to call for their work at the Atlanta Woman's Club as soon as possible.

trespassing, they won't be deeply offended by your suggestion that you prefer to handle your arguments with your husband without their interference. There are ways and ways of protecting your privacy. The best one is to respect the other fellow's privacy. If you are careful not to run in unexpectedly on your family they may take the cue from you. The power of suggestion is strong. However, if they continue to pop in on you at inauspicious times, just tell them frankly that you are annoyed by their intrusions and ask them to pay their visits when the day's work is done rather than when your husband is at home for meals.

It is better to offend your family than to have your relation with your husband spoiled. Yet if you are tactful and kind in your approach to them you won't necessarily offend them by trying to regulate their visits.

Audience enjoys ZACHARA CONCERT AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Franciszek Zachara, Polish pianist, and head of the piano department of Brenau Conservatory, gave a concert in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club Sunday afternoon that displayed to advantage his ability and versatility as an artist, playing to a near-capacity audience which received appreciatively his program of large proportions. The recital was the third of this season's free Sunday afternoon concerts sponsored by the life membership division of the club.

Zachara opened his program with an exquisite performance in true classical style of Bach's "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue in D Minor." The major Sonata by Mozart, which followed, was finely executed. Of the three Chopin numbers, each making taxing technical and musical demands, the "Scherzo in B flat minor" was most outstanding. From the last of the Scriabin "Nocturne for left hand alone" brought genuine admiration, and his own composition, "Mazurka in G major" was a charming and musicianly expression, evidencing inherent genius. The final number, the difficult "Mazurka in G major," was a brilliant mastery.

GERMAN PAPERS DIFFER ON COURSE TAKEN BY AMERICA

BERLIN, Nov. 5. (AP)—President Roosevelt of the United States was called the Peck's boy of world economy by the German newspapers today, and at the same time they asked the German nation to be thankful that Chancellor Hitler refuses to experiment with their country's currency.

Giving details in technical accounts of the American gold purchasing operations and explaining the reasons for such purchases, the newspapers anticipated the outcome of the American "experiment" in various ways.

The Diplomatic Böttisch Korrespondenz, however, supports Roosevelt, saying:

"The union is at the moment the show place of an experiment in state-directed currency, which experience must be regarded as one of the greatest efforts ever made by liberal capitalists to stem their obstacles."

From the last of the Scriabin "Nocturne for left hand alone" brought genuine admiration, and his own composition, "Mazurka in G major" was a charming and musicianly expression, evidencing inherent genius. The final number, the difficult "Mazurka in G major," was a brilliant mastery.

Willingham-Tift Urges Reroofing After Ravages of Summer's Intense Heat

ELLIS POINTS OUT VALUE OF REPAIR TO HOME OWNERS

Guaranteed Materials and Workmanship Insure Perfect Satisfaction to Customer.

After the ravages of the summer's heat, the time is ripe for re-roofing or for roof repairs, declares R. P. Ellis, manager of the Willingham-Tift Company, 800 Murphy avenue, N. W.

For many reasons, says Mr. Ellis, it is to the home owner's distinct advantage to have his roof put in first-class condition during the autumn months. Not only has the intense summer sun wrought severe damage in many instances, he points out, but unless a roof is in perfect condition it is likely to suffer in like measure under the ravages of wintry elements, wind, rain, snow and the quick-heating sunlight in the climate.

Roofing, Mr. Ellis adds, has a definite bearing upon fire insurance rates, and the person who owns a home or other building and is careless about its roof construction may do well to investigate this important factor in connection with his insurance.

A re-roofing job well done, he continues, will prove its value many times when the fuel bills are added up, since a well-sealed roof not only prevents the entry of penetrating winter winds but insures the maintenance of a maximum housing heat.

Mr. Ellis, an expert of years of experience in roofing, heads a staff of roofers who have been under his direction for more than a decade. As a major department of the Willingham-Tift Lumber Company, its material and workmanship are guaranteed.

The roofing estimators of the Willingham-Tift organization are experts in figuring on roofs and assisting their customers in selecting the proper type and design of re-roofing materials. In this connection, it is pointed out that the Willingham-Tift Lumber Company carries none but the best materials, nails, etc.

"We employ only skilled workmen for this work," says Mr. Ellis, and handle only first-class guaranteed materials, including Bird's roofing supplies. Therefore, we are in position to furnish a complete re-roofing job which carries not only the guarantee of the manufacturer but our own guarantee.

"The development of a satisfactory re-roofing shingle—Bird's—required years of research work by one of the largest roofing manufacturers in the country. This shingle is made particularly to meet all requirements for re-roofing old houses. It requires scientific application by an expert and cannot be handled by the average roofing man. Experience has taught us that this shingle is scientifically and properly designed to give long years of satisfactory service.

"First, we employ only skilled mechanics, who are trained in this type of work. We have set very high standards of workmanship, and every "Correct selling is the most important phase of our industry," says John H. Harland, president of the John H. Harland Company, lithographing, printing and office supply dealers, "and I believe the finest selling is essentially unselfish."

"Whenever a salesman makes a sale to you whereby you can make more money, or save yourself trouble, or greatly increase your satisfaction, or save your time, and the cost to you is reasonable and within your means, he has done you a real service."

"We do considerable sales preparation work in our organization," Mr. Harland adds, "for we believe that in order to intelligently understand

Horne Desk and Fixture Company Reports Consistent Gain in Sales

Evidence continues to multiply that general business is embarking upon the road to recovery, according to W. A. Horne, president of the Horne Desk and Fixture Company, with executive offices and salesroom located at 47-49 Pryor street, N. E.

Mr. Horne qualified this optimistic statement with the fact that the company last week received a solid carload of famous Gunn desks from Grand Rapids in walnut, oak and mahogany, and in sizes ranging from 28x36, 34x60 and 44x60 inches, and by the end of the week a large majority of them had been sold to business firms here and throughout this territory.

Just previous to this shipment, the firm received a carload of office chairs which had not been finished. The firm immediately put a number of expert finishers on the job and as fast as they could put this finishing touches to them they were sold. "They, as well as the desks, sold job must come up to these high specifications. There is no trash left around the premises, and shabby and old—ants are unneeded. Our re-roofing jobs are first-class in every respect, and carry our full guarantee as well as the insurance underwriters' label.

"Our locked re-roofing shingle has the correct area to nail, it has ample overlap, and is applied perfectly over old roofs that do not have solid decks. The nails are all covered and the locks are concealed, thus giving perfect protection from severe weather conditions.

It also is pointed out that the roof application department of Willingham-Tift uses zinc-coated, rustless nails, reinforced eaves, double valleys, hips and ridges capped with individual shingles. The company co-operates with dealers, and measures houses and submits bids for complete jobs.

HESITANT TREND FEATURES WEEK IN COTTON MART

Net Change for Six-Day
Session Cut to 1 Point in Late Trading.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Trading in the cotton contract market fell off to very moderate proportions during the past week due to hesitation among traders until the effect of the advance in gold prices becomes more evident. Trading has also been checked by the erratic course of the stock and grain markets, particularly declines in the face of the rapidly advancing prices for gold.

Prices experienced frequent fluctuations, but these fluctuations have been narrow, the extreme spread for the week not exceeding 35 points. The December option was at one time 7 points above the close of the preceding week and later showed a decline of 34 points, but late recoveries cut the net change for the period under review to small figures, or only 1 point net down.

One of the causes of the hesitant attitude of traders and the consequent limited volume of business was the near approach of the next government report and crop forecast. Traders fear that the bureau will show a marked increase in the yield prospect, and a month ago as some of the private estimates have been as high as 13,750,000 bales. Another cause for hesitation was the final disposition of option cotton accruing to those who cut their acreage under the provisions of the farm relief act. At the end of the week the impression prevailed that a solution of this problem would soon be reached.

The demand for spots has continued good and mill takings for the week have been large. At the same time, farmers are holding on firmly to the balance of their crops and the basis in the leading markets is high. Exports for the week have been liberal, fully 300,000 bales in round figures. The total was nevertheless slightly below the corresponding week last year.

High, low and closing sales in the futures market during the past week as compared with a year ago follow:

	High	Low	Close	Year
Dec.	9.87	9.23	9.50	6.24
Jan.	9.74	9.47	9.60	6.40
Mar.	9.89	9.57	9.74	6.50

July	10.13	9.85	10.03	6.69

SMALL FLUCTUATIONS

MARK COTTON TRADING
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The cotton market remained in a groove of inactivity and small fluctuations last week as the trade sought to gain some light on the significance of the latest currency developments in Washington.

At the close of the period active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were virtually unchanged from the levels of October 28. The market's firmness in the face of uncertainties not only as to monetary policy but also concerning the general business situation and the cotton trade itself, was attributed by many observers to a broadening tendency among growers to hold their cotton for government loans.

Some trade quarters heard that

Sterchi Bros. Upholstering Department Revives Beauty in Worn-Out Furniture

The creation of an old, worn living room suite into a thing of striking beauty and comfort is an easy task for Sterchi's master upholsterers.

Here is shown a section of the workroom where the magical touch of these skilled craftsmen brings charm and durability to furniture that, in many instances, is thought ready for consignment to the attic.

Sterchi's experts also are specialists in reupholstering heirloom pieces, in which frames are strengthened, broken springs are replaced and webbing is renewed. A wide variety of tapestries is provided for selection by the customer. Many beautiful fabrics, in countless colors, patterns and weaves, are shown for selection. All were purchased before the rise in prices, so naturally reupholstering prices now are considerably lower than may be expected in the future.

Sterchi's upholstery department, under the direction of Paul Sillin, interior decorator, is located in the Sterchi Bros. store at 118 Whitehall street. Associated with Mr. Sillin is Fred Brannon. Either will be glad to arrange an appointment in the home, where they may accurately estimate the cost of reupholstering any suite or odd piece. They may be reached by calling Sterchi's, Main 3100.

Courtesy, dependability, efficiency and fair dealing are factors which have made Layfield's Garage one of the most popular with automobile owners in the city. Through the nine years since its opening, it has built a reputation based upon unequalled service and the high quality of its work.

Layfield's Garage offers a thorough mechanical inspection service, without cost, to Atlanta motorists. In this connection, in order that the owner may more thoroughly understand his automobile and its needs, Mr. Layfield offers to supply anyone desiring it a copy of a specially prepared booklet, "Your Automobile," which offers convincing proof of the economical benefits to be derived by thorough rebuilding of the car.

Mr. Layfield also calls attention to the financing plan offered by Layfield's Garage, whereby the cost of needed repairs and overhauling work may be spread over a period of 12 months or more. He invites consultation at any time on automotive repairs and upon the advantages offered by this plan.

He cites especially the machine, recently installed, known as the "motor analyzer"—a machine which eliminates guesswork in the checking and diagnosing of automotive ills. Attached to any automobile motor while in operation, the "analyzer" indicator will reveal with unerring ease the mechanical defects, thus eliminating great loss of time in fault-finding.

With the trouble thus speedily located, skilled mechanics, equipped with machinery and tools of the most modern, are turning 50 to 75 per cent of their earnings over to the government agencies as collateral against federal loans, and at the same time are accepting the agreement to reduce their acreage next year under the government program.

Another factor in the stability of raw cotton prices during the week was the claim that the holding movement has steadily raised prices of spot cotton in the south in relation to the prices for future contracts. Thus, it was reported that spots were above a parity with future deliveries.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 55

The anger of Abu Batn against Zveri had been stimulated by the aspersions which the Russian had cast upon the courage of the Arab and his followers. "Dog of a Nasrany!" ejaculated the sheikh. "He called us cowards, we Bedawny, and left us here to guard the camp."

"He is but an instrument of Allah," said one of the Arabs, "in the great cause that will rid Africa of all Nasrany." "I would rather have the freedom of the desert," said Abu Batn, "and gather wealth myself than lie longer in this Nasrany camp!"

"I have looked upon your woman," said the sheikh, "I know a city where she would bring many pieces of gold." "In the trunk of the Nasrany chief there is much gold and silver," said one of the men. "The plunder of the camp is rich besides," suggested another.

"Is not Zveri always reminding us of the money, and the women, and the power we shall have when we have thrown out the English?" said Abu Batn. "Man is moved only by his greed. Let us take our profits and be gone."

"I have looked upon your woman," said the sheikh, "I know a city where she would bring many pieces of gold." "In the trunk of the Nasrany chief there is much gold and silver," said one of the men. "The plunder of the camp is rich besides," suggested another.
